The 'deforestation-free' approach to forest conservation, while becoming a norm in the commodities space, raises critical questions. A cross-sectoral panel of experts who have participated in TFD's dialogues on 'deforestation-free' will have a discussion aimed at covering several themes: exploring commonly held views on what is meant by 'deforestation-free' highlighting risks and opportunities associated with implementing deforestation-free policies, and capturing insights on key challenges and potential solutions to ensure that deforestation-free initiatives deliver positive social and environmental outcomes.
